FRANK GILL COMES TO LIFE.

COLLAR COLT REVERSES FORM AND WINS THE HINDOO STAKES.

The Result a Topsy-Turvy One—Bellwether, Arimo, Wave Crest, Fleming and Temaceo the Other Winners.

New York, September 24.—With Horner up, Frank Gill was an added starter for the rich Hindoo Stakes at Gravesend this afternoon. He was an easy winner. In his recent races Gill had run poorly, and on the presumption that he was out of form he was the extreme outsider in the betting. Next to him in poor betting estimation was Prince Hampton, and the Prince finished second. In fact, so far as ring operations were concerned, it was a topsy-turvy affair, the eagerly backed favorite, Smiling Tom, finishing last behind the second choice, Superman. Prince Hampton made the running for a mile and a quarter. Then Frank Gill went to the front and won by two lengths, and could have won farther off. Prince Hampton disposed of Monfort for second money in a driving finish. The Brooklyn Handicap winner, Superman, made a poor showing and never flattered his admirers the merest trifle.

Year.	Winner.	Wt.	Jockey.	Val.	Time.
1903	Hurstbourne	118	Fuller	$9,750	2:59
1904	Stalwart	126	Redfern	10,750	3:00
1905	Merry Lark	118	O'Neill	4,910	3:03
1906	Ironsides	103	C. Koerner	9,225	3:00
1907	Frank Gill	126	Horner	10,575	3:02

The track was stiff and heavy, weather good and attendance great.

Bellwether made a runaway affair of the first race, outspeeding Big Chief all the way, and winning eased up by two and a half lengths. Big Chief holding Rampage safe at the finish. Halket was coming like a locomotive at the end, but got into action too late.

Arimo, now in excellent form, easily accounted for the second race. It was another case of going right out in front and staying there. Arimo should be a good horse in California next winter. Herman ran a good race and finished second, but Brancan would have filled that position if capably ridden, and might have given Arimo a good battle for first money.

Running Account was a substantially supported favorite for the third race, but was pocketed and unlucky generally, and ran unplaced. Wave Crest winning by a short head from Aunt Rose in a stirring finish, with Martha Jane only another short head back.

Fleming was admirably suited by the track conditions, and led the even money favorite, Tom McGrath, by three good lengths when the winning line was reached in the fifth race. Temaceo downed an odds-on favorite when he showed the way throughout to Right Royal in the sixth.

C. R. Ellison recouped on Temaceo in the last race. Right Royal proved unexpectedly easy game for the Texas-bred three-year-old.

R. F. Carman had a big day over the successes of Arimo and Fleming, both of which he backed for large sums.

The inconsistent running of Frank Gill and the disgraceful defeat of Superman as Supermam produced a painful impression upon the race-going public. J. L. McGinnis, the owner of the winner, claims that he bet $500 on his horse in the First Special, and the same sum on him today.

BEN TROVATO WINS AT LONG ODDS.

Cincinnati, O., September 24.—An inferior card, of which a steeplechase was the most attractive feature, drew but a scanty attendance to Latonia today, and the twenty-three bookmakers ready to do business in the big ring suffered from lack of patronage, except in some instances where some wisely informed ones gave them more than they really wanted. In the first race, for instance, Pleasant View Belle was persistently supported and backed down from 6 to 1 to 18 to 5, causing heavy losses to the layers when she got home first in a desperate finish, in which seven horses finished necks and noses apart. The bookies had their turn, however, when Ben Trovato, at 40 to 1, and neglected by the speculators, got home in front of Dainty Belle and Soprano in the third race. Pete Viuegar put up a good performance in the steeplechase but W. K. Slade would have won had not his rider tumbled off. Sullivan, on Class Leader, was warned by the judges, but it had no appreciable effect, and Class Leader will do better on another day. Judge Treen is in fine form and ran a fast race.

Jockey Farrow fell from Demonstrate in the first race and injured his wrist. In the third jockey Skirvin was crowded against the fence and had a toe broken. Jockey J. Watkins was suspended for ten days by the starter for misbehavior at the post.

The Latonia management and the poolroom information crowd were into a battle of thirty hours or so over "the price" and the service wasn't very clear Monday. But today "the price" was agreed on and things went on as usual.

The sale of the Respass interest to George B. Cox caused endless gossip and talk about Louis Cella obtaining possession of Latonia through a merger of the Cox and Rhinok interests with him. Such may be the case, but such a change would not harm local racing. Mr. Cox is rich enough, however, to own Latonia as a good investment.

SAVED MACKAY YEARLING PROFIT.

C. F. Hill sold for Clarence H. Mackay his entire crop of yearlings this season to G. D. Wilson, Senator J. W. Bailey's partner in the breeding of thoroughbreds, for $30,000, says the New York Telegraph. This was some six weeks before the date set for the youngsters to be shipped to the New York sales. After going again over the yearlings and studying the proposition more closely, Mr. Hill concluded to ask Wilson to let him out of the deal, though Mackay always stands ready to back up anything his manager does at Kingston Farm. Wilson was agreeable, as he was too courteous to hold Hill to the bargain. At the New York sales four of the youngsters sold for more than Wilson was getting the entire lot for.

AGED RACERS WHICH LEAD THE MONEY WINNERS OF 1907.

When a race horse has arrived at the age of six years his speed has, as a rule, declined, even if he still remains sound and healthy. There are some exceptions, but they are so few as to be known to all conversant with the affairs of the track. It results from this, in combination with other factors, that very few horses aged six or over win sums sufficient to give them marked prominence in the list of important winners of any year. So far in 1907 but one racer of the class under consideration has won as much as $10,000 and in all but seven have won $5,000 or more. Roseben, which will run no more this year in all probability, has won $13,805 and is the solitary winner of over $10,000. Rapid Water is close to the $10,000 mark and it is quite probable that he will pass it before the year comes to a close. Of the others it is doubtful whether Proper will be raced again, although he may be. Miss Crawford, Polly Prim, Sir Lynnewood and St. Valentine are all in good racing condition and are likely to add to their winnings in the course of this fall's campaigning. Here is what this thin list of veterans of the race track has achieved to date in 1907:

Horse.	Age.	Pedigree.	Owner.	Sts.	1st.	2d.	3d.	Unp.	Won.
Roseben	6	Ben Strome—Rose Leaf	D. C. Johnson	14	7	4	2	1	$13,805

STARTER MURRAY UNDER THE BAN.

Barred at Hamilton Because of His Work at Jamestown.

Hamilton, Ont., September 24.—Either A. B. Dade or Dick Dwyer will start the horses here. William Murray, the regular official, has been starting at Jamestown, Va. He is consequently under the ban of the Jockey Club and the Ontario Jockey Club respects its rulings and has barred Murray. Either Dade or Dwyer will be here in time to officiate tomorrow. The fields are limited to sixteen horses.

The meeting of ten days will open under the most favorable auspices. The forecasts are for fine weather and with the track in its present condition, is a guarantee that large fields will go to the post in the different events. There are seven races on the program the feature of which is a mile and a furlong handicap with an added value of $500. There are about 500 horses on the ground, a majority of which came here from Fort Erie and Montreal. Many of the stables which took part in the Toronto meeting could not be accommodated with stable room here and they shipped either to Windsor or New York.

W. O. Joplin and Green B. Morris sent their strings to Latonia. L. A. Bousack and T. O. Webber went to New York. Tom Wiley and Henry Higginson, back to Boston. J. E. Seagram's entire stable was sent back to New York in charge of Barry Littlefield and with the lot returned jockeys McDaniel, R. Watts and A. Kelly. W. H. Mosby went to New York with his stable and jockey McCarthy accompanied him. J. A. Sykes returned to New York with King of the Valley and the latter will be raced through the field from now on. The stables of the two Canadian owners, J. Dymont and J. J. Walsh and the two horses Tongorder and Simon D. also went east. Amos Turney sent the two-year-old Clell Turney to New York in the same car with the horses of Dymont and Walsh. George Pierce went to Windsor with his three jumpers, Bank Holiday, Judge Nolan and Russell A. Jockey. V. Powers went to Latonia to join the stable of his employer L. A. Cella there. William Walker shipped his entire string from Toronto direct to Oakland, California. J. W. Colt's stable of jumpers went to New York and with them jockeys Rodrock and C. Chandler. Jockey Joe Kelly left for California.

Judge Joseph Burke is due here from New York in the morning. Many improvements have been made on the plant since last spring and the erection of a new judges' stand adds greatly to the appearance of the place.

THIRTY LEADING OWNERS.

The Keene Stable, by adding $11,465 last week to its great winnings of the year, brought the total within easy striking distance of the English record of $58,947, by the Duke of Portland's Stable of 1889. RACING GOSSIP FROM LATONIA.

Cincinnati, O., September 24.—Matt J. Wynn was here yesterday and left last night for New York for a conference with Louis A. Cella and S. F. Heaslip relative to further appointment of New Orleans officials.

Jockey T. Taylor made application for a rehearing of his case, and the judges will grant him an audience next Wednesday.

Jockey Goodie was suspended by the starter for three days for misbehavior at the post.

Jockey W. Ott was given two days for the same offense. Steeplechase jockey McClure arrived today from Oklahoma and is seeking reinstatement.

St. Volma, which was injured in his last start at Saratoga, is again getting well and will be started at this meeting.

Alex Labold stated today that Chulita would be kept in the east and raced there until the close of the season.

J. B. Respass announced that all his horses except the yearlings sired by Dick Welles are for sale. He intends racing the youngsters next season on the New York tracks.

Rehall, while being exercised Monday morning, fell and was injured.

LEONATUS STUD TO BE SOLD OUT.

Lexington, Ky., September 24.—Chairman J. P. Chinn of the Kentucky State Racing Commission has decided to sell the Leonatus Stud Farm and all of the thoroughbreds thereon. There is a mortgage of $50,000 on the property, and Colonel Chinn wants to clear himself of the debt.

LESSIA DEFEATS WHITE EAGLE.

Flair's Sister Beats the Crack Colt in Champagne Stakes.

The hitherto unbeaten English two-year-old White Eagle met his first defeat in the Champagne Stakes at Doncaster and to the consternation of his backers, was not even placed. The fluky filly Lessia, a full sister to Flair, the winner of the One Thousand in 1906, proved the winner under Danny Maher's skillful riding. Another good filly, Ardrevive, was second and the Duke of Westminster's colt Vamose, a full brother to the famous Flying Scot, was third. Naturally the result led to a great amount of comment and it is interesting to note there was nearly unanimous opinion to the effect that White Eagle had been injuriously affected by his tremendous race with Richard Croker's filly Rhodora at Sandown Park. London Sporting Life's account of the race said:

"Taken on the previous performances, the Champagne Stakes was as full of interest to the veteran sportsman as the St. Leger itself. It was thought that White Eagle's tremendous struggle under welter weight with Rhodora at Sandown had strained his constitution, as it had that of Traquair and several other good two-year-olds, which may account for his starting a 6 to 4 chance. He looked well, but has got a bit more on the leg. Ardentive, narrow to look at, was not so much handicapped as Lessia, a sister to Flair, which had greatly impressed the critics by the way she polished off Flying Scot and Morena at York, and through the latter was supposed to hold Vamose safe. Lessia, on whom Danny Maher adopted crouching down tactics, was followed by White Eagle and Ardrevive, with Vamose on the rails, and coming around the bend, backers expected to see the favorite take his place. The bulldog courage that had characterized him at Sandown was, however, lacking, and entering the straight the shout 'The favorite's beaten' explained the situation. Vamose was also in difficulties and Ardrevive came with a wet sail. She, however, could not get on terms with Sir D. Cooper's filly, which, with her eyes opened at York, did all she was wanted, and keeping a length's advantage up the final straight, won amidst a scene of the greatest excitement, by that distance and in such a style as suggested that she had a bit extra to put on if necessary. Though not a big one, the winner is a nice filly, covering a lot of ground. She is engaged in all the classic events next year except the Two Thousand Guineas and if she only goes on in the right way will make a flier.

Many of the greatest English horses have in their youth won the Champagne Stakes, the winners of which since 1886 have been as follows:

1887 Arshire.	1898 Mark Forard.
1888 Chittabob.	1899 Democrat.
1889 Riviera.	1900 Orchid.
1890 Haut Saone.	1901 Game Chick.
1891 La Fleche.	1902 Rock Sand.
1892 The Prize.	1903 Pretty Polly.
1893 Ladus.	1904 Galangal.
1894 Omladine.	1905 Verdiana.
1895 Omladine.	1906 Achilles.
1896 Velasquez.	1906 Shere Gallion.
1897 Ayah.

EASTERN BETTING GAME REDUCED.

Cincinnati, O., September 24.—"If the Jockey Club is seeking to break up the plunging on the race tracks under its control it is succeeding pretty well," said Pat Gorman the other day. Pat was asked for a couple of weeks and saw the big racing at Sheepshead Bay. He knows the betting ring more than well.

"I spent a lot of time," said he, "in the betting ring and in the spots where the big money comes in, but there was not any of that sort in sight. The biggest betting was done right at the clubhouse. Of course, there were plenty of wagers registered that represented $200 or more, but there was no one setting it in chunks."

"Another thing noticeable was the panicky condition of the ring. The bookies know how to say 'no,' and the odds bob up and down in an astonishing manner, while the layers are trying to get a line on what's doing."

"It's not the game that it was a few years ago, but whether the wishes of the Jockey Club as to plunging are being respected, or whether it is due to the scarcity of money is a question. There were a lot of bookmakers on at Futurity day and other days following at Sheepshead, but the big majority of them are working with limited bank rolls and in consequence are very conservative."

RESPASS SELLS HIS LATONIA STOCK.

Cincinnati, O., September 24.—George B. Cox, the politician and banker, yesterday bought a one-fourth interest in the Latonia Jockey Club from J. B. Respass. Respass and Rhinok together controlled over 50 per cent of the stock and Cox and Rhinok now control. Mr. Cox said tonight that he bought the stock to prevent it from falling into other people's hands, but it is generally believed that he bought it for the Cella-Adler-Tilles syndicate. If he did, with what they own now, they will control the track.

Respass said he sold the stock because he was held responsible for everything that went wrong, even when he had nothing at all to do with some of the affairs for which he was given credit. The price he received for his stock is not known, but it is estimated at $50,000. Respass intends to quit the poolroom business and devote all of his time to breeding and racing horses.

THE NEW BOOKMAKER-OWNER RULE.

Cincinnati, O., September 24.—Colonel Milton Young of the Kentucky Racing Commission is at Latonia. The question was brought up as to the rule passed by the commission recently as to bookmakers who own horses. Colonel Young said there would be but one construction, for the rule reads that a man shall not race, train or ride and make book at the same time. The mere presence of a man's horses at the track, even if they are not raced, would prevent him from book-making.

LOS ANGELES' NEW STAKES.

OFFERINGS OF THE SANTA ANITA TRACK WILL BE LIBERAL.

Santa Anita Handicap with $7,500 Added, and Derby to Get $5,000 Extra—The List Not Yet Complete.

Los Angeles, Cal., September 24.—Work on the new Santa Anita track being well in hand, contracts being signed and incorporation complete, Barney Schreiber and George Rose are going east among the horsemen. It is settled that E. J. Baldwin will be president and Lyman J. Davis will probably be secretary. Jack Atkin is more than likely to manage the track.

Nearly all of the Ascot stakes have been preserved in different form and name, but the five principal stakes will be the Los Angeles Derby, with a guaranteed value of $5,000; the Santa Anita Handicap, with a guaranteed value of $7,500; the Norfolk Stakes, at four miles, with $2,000 added; the Woodlands Stakes, with $1,500 added, for two-year-olds, subscribed principally by Barney Schreiber, as usual; the Rose Selling Stakes, with $2,000 added, subscribed principally by George Rose.

Slight changes may be made in the stakes when the list is submitted for approval, but these five stakes have been named and are assured, and the Derby value, the Santa Anita Handicap value and the Norfolk Stakes value have been decided upon and will not be changed. The Woodlands Stakes will remain the same as the stake by that name that was a feature of two-year-old racing at Ascot, as will the Rose Selling Stakes.

In making the Los Angeles Derby conditions, it was decided to give it a guaranteed value of $5,000, as it was deemed advisable to put it in the same class with the California Derby, although the latter stake will have an added instead of a guaranteed value of $5,000, which will make it worth slightly more than the Los Angeles Derby.

For the richest stake event of the season, the Santa Anita Handicap has been chosen and a guaranteed value of $7,500 is named. The Ascot Handicap was the richest stake event at the local track, but had only $3,000 added money. The Burns Handicap, the richest stake of the Emeryville season, has a guaranteed value of $10,000, and the Santa Anita Handicap will rank second only to that classic. It probably will be at one and one-quarter miles.

Emperor of Norfolk, the greatest of all the Baldwin horses, will have a monument to his memory in the four-mile stake, the Norfolk Stakes, which will have an added value of $2,000, and will class with the Thornton Handicap at Emeryville, which was the only four-mile stake event in America until the Norfolk Stakes was established.

The Rose Selling Stakes was the New Year offering at Ascot and was worth about $2,000 to the winner. It will be continued at Santa Anita Park, and George Rose, after whom it is named, will contribute the major portion of the added money.

Barney Schreiber will perpetuate the fame of his Missouri Stud in the Woodlands Stakes, for two-year-olds, and will contribute the major portion of the added money value of that event.

EXPECT TO RACE IN ARKANSAS.

Kentucky Horsemen Told To Be Ready—Elmendorf To Sell Mares.

Lexington, Ky., September 24.—It is probably not generally known, but the word is being passed a racing circles, that it is a certainty that there will be a meeting at Oaklawn next spring, and the number of days is being placed at sixty. There is a well-defined impression that legal obstacles in Arkansas will be removed, though the powers that be are not loquacious as to their plans.

John Mackey, the veteran general manager of J. B. Haggin's breeding farm, arrived from California yesterday, and will spend about six weeks at Elmendorf Stud. It is understood that Mr. Haggin has decided to catalogue a large number of his mares with the Fasig-Tipton Company for the annual sale here in November, and Mr. Mackey's visit here at this time is for the purpose of selecting the animals to be disposed of.

D. T. Morris, the man who developed and sold Chulita to Alex Labold and Barney Dreyfuss, has the largest string of yearlings here—something like thirty head. The majority of these are owned by R. L. Thomas, and were bought, for the greater part, at the summer and fall sales at Sheepshead Bay. The Thomas yearlings are shortly to be tried out, and the half dozen showing best will probably be reserved for a campaign in the east next year, though Mr. Thomas is just now planning a trip abroad during the summer of 1908. The others will be sent to California to be campaigned at Oakland by John Ireland. There are some good lookers in the Thomas collection. Mr. Morris has half a dozen or so yearlings of his own which he expects to campaign at Hot Springs.

The stallions, Ormeau and Scintillant II., which took the first and second prizes respectively in the show ring for thoroughbred sires at the State Fair at Louisville Saturday, were returned to Edward Corrigan's farm Sunday night. Mr. Corrigan went to Chicago from Louisville, but will return to Lexington Wednesday. Tommy McGee, his secretary, is here.

Fletcher Driver says the best-looking youngster at T. H. Stevens' Walnut Hill Stud is the colt by Scintillant II.—Modjeska, the dam of eight winners—Merito, Siddons, Bernays, Mok-ka-hi, Ara, Laura B., Hoyt and Pearl Moon. Mr. Driver says the colt has not been halter broken as yet, and that nothing will be done with him until late in October. He is not for sale. Mr. Stevens, who has been campaigning at Seattle and will spend the winter at Oakland, intends to race this fellow himself. Driver has a yearling at the track here by Wadsworth, out of a sister to Calman, holder of the world's record for one mile, 1:33, which recently ran an eighth of a mile in 11 1/2 seconds.

Ardis, which James C. Rogers took from Miller Henderson for $800 after his victory Saturday, is now the property of Milton Young, and was sent to Latonia with the stable of W. A. Smith. Mr. Young bought the horse from Mr. Rogers Saturday evening, giving him $750, an advance of $150 for him.

ROSEBEN ON THE WAY TO RECOVERY.

New York, September 24.—Roseben's condition is much improved, according to trainer Frank D. Weir. His temperature is normal and he eats heartily. But his swollen hind leg in which blood poisoning set in last Wednesday was still very painful. Just now the veterinaries believe that Roseben will pull through, but whether he will ever be able to race again is a matter of some doubt. "The Big Train" has lost nearly one hundred pounds since he was stricken.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

[Communications without names and addresses of senders will not be answered or noticed; nor will any answers be sent by mail.]

J. W. M., St. Louis, Mo. The Lattice-Westbury bet was a draw.

W. H. H., Chicago. The distance was three-quarters of a mile. The error was typographical.

J. M. K., St. Louis, Mo. Seemingly what is coming to you is a $2 bet on Minos and its proceeds.

E. C. Strickland, St. Louis, Mo. No records of the nature you call for are extant. When the time comes they will be published. W. B. Gates has won 65 races to date. The last was run at Seattle last June.

R. L. T., Cincinnati, O. Yes. The firm files with us each day before the races and is, with all others, required to do so. No party is allowed to advertise a winner unless that winner is filed, before the race is run, with Daily Racing Form.

NOTES OF THE TURF.

George C. Bennett is carrying out his threat to quit as a breeder and will sell all his stallions and mares, as well as his racing string, this fall.

J. B. Brady has decided that Oiseau will not train again and the Ormus-Kittie Gunn horse has been sent to Kentucky to join Water Light as a stallion.

An oddity among the Spokane, Wash., jockeys, but a clever little rider, is R. Harrington, who weighs but 60 pounds and often has to carry 40 pounds of lead in the saddle. He is called "Doughnuts," and rides for J. Coffey.

D. A. Ross has arrived at Oakland, Cal., with Massa, Mechin, The Mist, May L. N., and others. Walker and McKennin, J. O. and G. H. Keene, J. F. Clifford, W. P. Magrane and E. J. Ramsey are also in San Francisco getting ready for racing.

Jake Holtzman will most likely officiate as starter for the first week of New Orleans, as Mars Cassidy will be busy at Benning. Mr. Holtzman received permission from President Tom Williams yesterday, and Dick Dwyer will officiate at Oakland's opening on November 9.

QUEER RACING IN SOUTHERN ITALY

Events Which Are Run as They Were Four Hundred Years Ago.

Rome, September 3.—In no other country are ancient usages and customs so well cherished as in Italy. The life of the Middle Ages could be described from observation and study of present day institutions. Thus the Palio races in Siena on July 2 and August 16 have retained the character they had when instituted in 1650.

The origin of these races could be traced back to ancient Roman times. Before they were instituted in Siena, the annual races were run by buffaloes ridden by jockeys, which contests supplanted bull fights in 1599, when, to quote a writer of the time, "the habits of the people began to become more genteel."

Palio is derived from pallium and refers to a banner awarded to the winning horse. The ten horses that run the race each represent a contrada or ward of the city. Originally the city was divided into sixty wards, each characterized by a special name, generally that of some animal or natural object, and each having its own church and patron saint, as well as its special banners, emblems and colors.

After the plague of 1348 the wards were reduced to forty-two, and subsequently the Medici reduced the number to twenty-three. In 1675 six contrade were suppressed for bad conduct and thus only seventeen are now left.

Ten wards are selected by lot to run the Palio. The horses are assigned by lot to the wards a week before the race takes place. The following are the names of the wards: Tortoise, Wood, Snail, Panther and Eagle of the first division; Boar, Tower, Caterpillar, Owl, Bull and Unicorn of the second; and Dragon, Goose, Wolf, Giraffe, Fox and Deer of the third.

Although only ten wards compete for the race, all take part in the preliminary parade, and two days beforehand the banners of all seventeen are taken to the cathedral, where they are hung till the time for using them comes. The patron saint of each ward plays an important part during the races, as although the races are run in honor of the Virgin to whom the Siennese have from time immemorial dedicated themselves, still the people of the winning ward ascribe the victory to the power of their protecting saint.

In fact on the day preceding the race two pages from each contrada, dressed in medieval costume, carry a huge basket of artificial flowers to the church of their saint and after the races are over the winning horse is escorted by his contrada to the church, into which he is carried for benediction. There is a deep rooted jealousy between the different contrade which has outlived the old divisions of party and even at present leads to scenes of violence and bloodshed.

The jockeys are professionals and they, like the horses, are assigned by lot to the wards. The men adopted to secure the prize are often most unscrupulous. Every possible attempt is made to corrupt or buy up the jockeys. Sometimes two contrade are so jealous of a third that they agree to prevent its winning, even if they have to renounce the prize themselves.

The horses are ridden without saddles and each of the jockeys is armed with a thick whip called nerbo, with which by the old rules of the race still in force he can, if he chooses, not only cut his companions across the face or back, but also knock them off their horses. It is not uncommon for fierce fights to take place between the riders, several of whom may be beaten off their horses.

As the race draws near the close the losing parties often attack each other violently and use every means in their power to drag and beat back from winning horse, so that in most cases the race degenerates into a fight. Since 1719 the whips used by the jockeys are distributed by the police at the time of the race in order to prevent the use of certain long whips which were such formidable weapons that they could easily be used to knock off the jockeys from their horses, with great danger to their lives.

Except for this change the rules of the races have never been altered, and they are practically the same as they were about 300 years ago. The race takes place in the Piazza del Campo, which is semicircular in shape and resembles a cockle shell, sloping gently from the curving rim toward the straight side, in the center of which stands the Municipal Palace.

This piazza is stone paved and quite unadapted for a race course owing to its unevenness. Sudden curves and steep descents. At the most dangerous points mattresses are laid to break the fall of horse or rider, for the race is seldom run without accidents, but there is a tradition that the Virgin will not allow a rider to be killed outright during the race, and in fact only one jockey is known to have been killed, Osti Paci in 1719, after which the number of horses was restricted to ten by a city decree.

The piazza is richly decorated on the day of the races. The pavement is strewn with yellow sand, tiers of seats are built around the lower stories of the buildings and draped with cloth, and temporary wooden barriers are erected around its boundary, thus forming the race course.

From every window and balcony rich draperies of every fabric and color are hung, while flags float from every building. Needless to say the whole piazza is crowded, and it looks as if paved with faces.

After a long wait under the broiling mid-summer sun, which, however, does not seem to have any effect on the natural cheerfulness of the crowd, the course is cleared and the parade of the contrada enters, while the bands burst forth into music. First come the seven representatives of the contrada that do not take part in the race. They are all dressed in medieval costumes, rich in color and texture, a drummer beating wildly on his drum marches in front and behind him come several members of the contrada with the banner and emblems of their district.

The other contrade follow. Besides their drummers each has two standard bearers, who wave their flags backward and forward, fling them high in the air, catch them as they fall, twist them around their bodies and execute all sorts of tricks with wonderful skill and grace. Four officers and the captain of the contrada, attended by two pages, all in ancient costumes, bring up the rear. Then, accompanied by his groom, comes the running horse, decorated with flowers, richly caparisoned and with his hoofs covered with gold leaf and immediately following him comes the jockey or fante, riding another horse and wearing a plumed helmet and a particular dress with the arms of the contrada on his back.

As each contrada passes it is saluted with loud cries. Meanwhile the drums are all beating together, bands playing, people shouting and cheering, multi-colored flags waving. All this noise and color in a space enclosed with old medieval palaces and filled with a modern but Italian and hence excited crowd that carries one back out of the present century into the Middle Ages.

The illusion is rendered complete when drawn by six horses and surrounded by men in armor, the great Carroccio with a tall pillar in the center, surmounted by a bell and with the flags of the contrade grouped on it slowly rolls by at the end of the procession. The Carroccio is the old war chariot of the Siena and the most characteristic feature of the whole show. It is a relic of medieval warfare, invented by the Siennese and originally intended to bear the flag of the city in battle. In fact, even today it carries the black and white colors of Siena.

The object of this war chariot in the Middle Ages was to give solidity to the charges of the army in the field, and it was a point of honor to defend it to the last. The Carroccio always accompanied the army, and wherever it stopped was the place of battle. The bell served to give the signal for attack or retreat or to call the council.

The direction of the car was generally given to the most expert in tactics and the art of war and he became its captain. He was accompanied by eight trumpeters and a priest who said mass and shrilled the dying and battle.

The Carroccio originally was in the Siena races was taken from the Florentines in the battle of Monte Aperto fought in 1220, when the Siennese, who numbered only 1,100 against 40,000 Florentines, killed 10,000 of the latter. The Carroccio now in use was made after the old model.

After the procession's slow parade around the ring the representatives of the contrade take their seats in a special section reserved for them, and the race begins. The jockeys take off their helmets and put on caps of the color of the contrade. The police distribute the whips, a gun is fired, the rope falls and the horses shoot forward amid a thunderous uproar.

A lively struggle is then seen among the riders. They strike one another fiercely, they grapple together, and strive to force their adversaries' horses back. Meanwhile the people, wildly excited, jump and scream, some hiss and hoot, while others applaud.

At almost every turn of the course—the race is three turns around the piazza—some jockey is flung headlong against the padded mattresses. Others are dragged off their horses by sheer force, but generally these succeed in catching their adversary's bridle and spoil his race as well.

Sometimes a horse or two, riderless and maddened by the tumult, will break away, and, clearing the barrier, rush through the excited crowd within, creating a panic and increasing the confusion and uproar. As the successful horse nears the goal the people of his contrada go wild.

After the race the crowd rushes over the course, and runs toward the winner, the majority to vent their anger on him, the others, those of his contrada, to protect him. He is surrounded, lifted off his horse, embraced, hugged and kissed until he is almost suffocated.

The police generally rescue him both from his friends and enemies. After a while both the winning jockey and horse are escorted by the people of their contrada to a convent where the prize, or palio, is awarded and the horse is borne away in triumph to church, where the banner just won is blessed.

For weeks after the race the festivities of the successful contrada continue. The horse is paraded through the streets with music, he is brought upstairs to the second story of the Palazzo Chigi and exhibited from the balcony to crowds of admiring and applauding spectators below, and finally banquets are given in the open streets and the fante is invited and occupies the head of a long table with a fine full manger before him.

Such are the races of the palio at Siena today and such have they been for hundreds of years gone by.
